World Day of Social Justice One day workshop Report

Loyola FM club organized a workshop on 'Social Justice' on 21 February 2020 in the Old Viscom block from 2:30pm to 4:30pm. Prof. Andrew, Department of Social Work, was the resource person who is known for his oratory skills and his commitment for social service. His area of specialisation is in 'Protection of Children from Sexual Assault' and he gave an insight on POCSO (Prevention of Children from Sexual Offences) Act, 2012 to the students. He shed light on various real life case studies on Indian children and explained how this act proved to be of help in seeking justice for those children. Also he spoke on the do's and don'ts' until one becomes a major, the present rate of female sex ratio in India and the reasons for the prevalence of female infanticide and increase in the number of crimes against children and women. He appealed to the students to not remaining passive to any injustice happening around them and should be a responsible citizen. The students were enlightened on knowing various laws and applications available for child protection and women protection. The students found the session to be very informative.
