

Loyola College (Autonomous)
Chennai – 600 034

Department of History

Special Lecture

The Department of History, Loyola College organized a special lecture on 14th March 2018. Dr. David Johnson, Associate Professor, University of North Carolina, Charlotte delivered the lecture on “Death at the end of the Empire: The lasting Legacy of European Cemeteries in India”. After the prayer, Dr. L. Selvanathan, Head, Department of History welcomed and introduced the speaker.

Prayer song

Welcome Address & Introducing the Chief Speaker

Department Choir

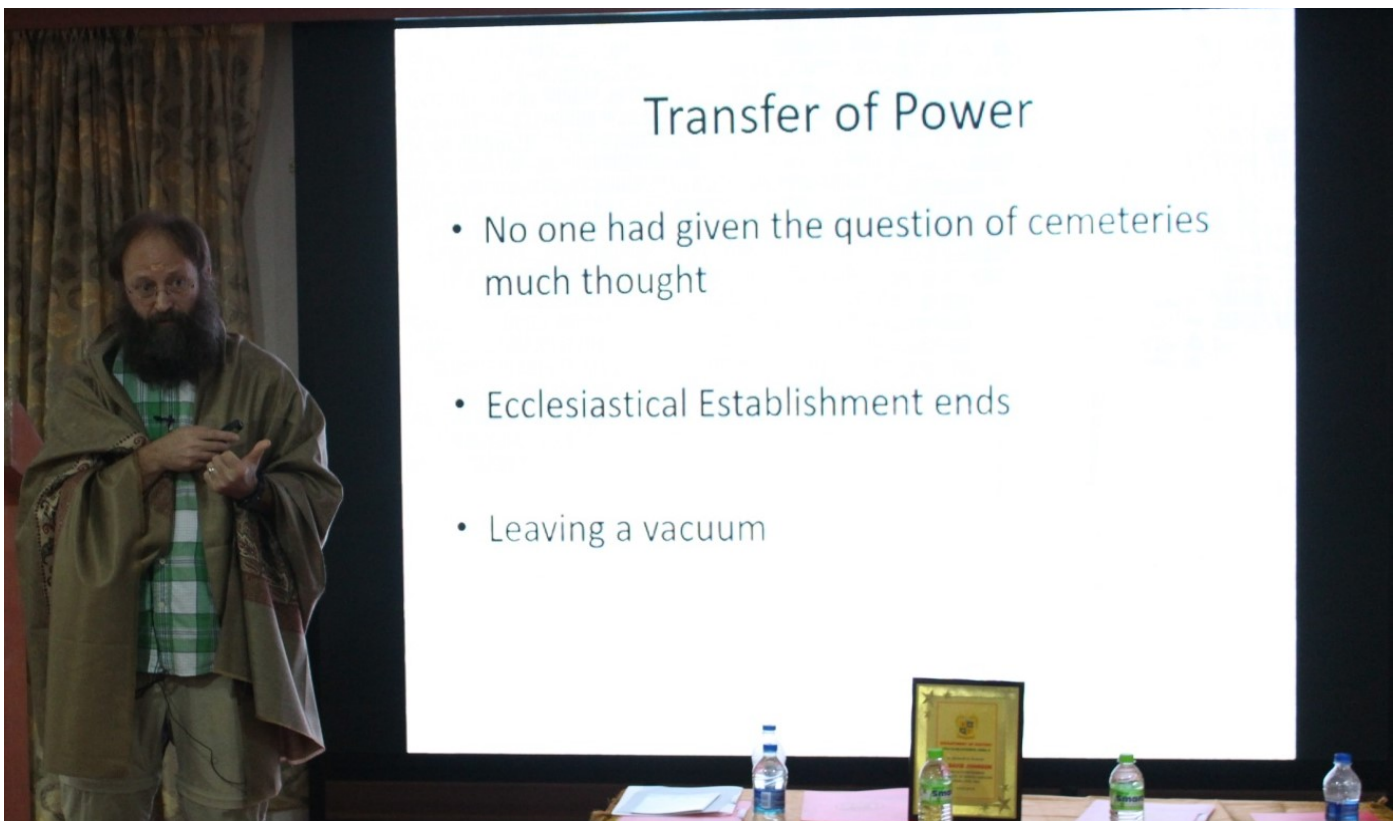

Dr. L. Selvanathan

Dr. L. Selvanathan and Dr. Yesubhakthan honouring the Speaker

Dr. David Johnson's lecture was mainly focused on the Colonial Era, when the British enjoyed the pomp and pleasure. He took the cemeteries as the sign of the ruins that holds the legacy of the past, with a slight emotional touch. He also encapsulated the way power shapes history. In this lecture he substantiated that the understanding of history or the past makes us more familiar with the present.

Mr. Kunjunni Sajeev II B.A

Mr. Adhitiya Kaarthikeyan II B.A

Mr. Vidyadharan III B.A

Vote of thanks

Dr. A. Arputha Selvi, President, History Association

Master of Ceremony

Mr. Siddharth Lama II B.A

After an interaction, Dr. A. Arputha Selvi, President, History Association proposed the vote of thanks. The session concluded with a Thanks Giving hymn.