PART – B

(3 x 20 = 60 Marks)

Answer any Three of the following in 1200-1500 words each

7. a) Analyse the alignment of one ancient political thinker's political thought with classical realism in international relations. Explore the realist arguments concerning power as the distinguishing factor in International Politics.
b) Investigate the significance of power in International Relations according to Hans Morgenthau and provide an extensive discussion of Morgenthau's perspectives on International Politics as an ongoing struggle for power.
8. Examine the foundational ideas of liberalism and undertake a detailed exploration of the assumptions made by various strands of liberalism.
b) To what extent does Alexander Wendt's argument, "Anarchy is What States Make of It", challenge mainstream materialistic and individualistic perspectives in international relations by highlighting the role of shared ideas and norms in shaping state behaviour?
9. a) Undertake a thorough examination of one of the following theoretical perspectives in International Relations: (I) International Society or (II) Marxist theory.
(or)
b) How do feminist theorists in International Relations seek to reformulate and reshape the understanding of global politics? In this context, compare and contrast the arguments presented by Ann Tickner in her feminist reimagining of Hans Morgenthau's principles of political realism, focusing on the key areas of agreement and disagreement between these perspectives."
