Diasporans who migrated to different nations struggled with their new language, customs, ethnicity and culture. The cultural crisis, dislocation and displacement remain as a pain in their lives. Dislocation is used as 'a term for both the occasion of displacement as a result of imperial occupation and the experiences associated with the event'. The term is used to cover the willing or the unwilling movement from a known to an unknown location, and includes experiences ranging from invasion and settlement to slavery and imprisonment. Dislocation might be the common experience of those who have moved away from home due to 'globalization'.
